1. A rise in stock prices was fueled by confidence that the stock market could only go up, so to “buy on the margin” (borrow money from a broker to buy stocks) was a sure thing, and the __________________________ country became a source of much postwar lending.

2. By 1933, six million Germans were unemployed, which was __________________________ of the total workforce, though women were sometimes better off than men because they were paid less and less likely to be laid off.

3. Stormtroopers (brown shirts/ SA) thought they were reviving German masculinity by committing acts of violence on __________________________ and __________________ people.

4. Meanwhile, Stalin blamed _____________________________, or well-to-do peasants for food scarcity.

5. Stalin also “wanted to reorganize the agricultural economy by seizing individual farms and converting them into _____________________________ that would replace private ownership.”

6. The Ukraine was hit especially hard by collectivization, and the resulting famine likely resulted in the death of at least __________________________ by the mid 1930s.

7. Stalin then tried to _____________________________ (Communist code word for execute) members of his own party after “show trials.”

8. The Five Year Plans accompanied the purges and led to rapid _____________________________.

9. In fall of 1932, Communists and Nazis won similarly strong support, though the _____________________________ lost a few seats in Parliament during the election.

10. Conservatives convinced President _____________________________ to appoint __________________________ chancellor because they thought he’d be easier to control than communists.
11. Hitler also tried to create a “Volksgemeinschaft” or people’s community, and excluded many for not being “properly German.” List three of the targeted groups.

15. In November 1938, the Nazis found an excuse to commit acts of violence and destruction against Jewish synagogues, businesses, homes and individuals called ____________________________

(* also sometimes called Pogromnacht to avoid using the Nazi term, as it has become pejorative in Germany. Most AP Euro textbooks still use the term listed here)

16. In 1936, Germany occupied the Rhineland and in 1938 they violated the Peace of Paris by occupying _________________ to cheering crowds, known in German as the ________________ (see above).

17. When Hitler claimed the Sudetenland, the __________________________ secured his claim, and Hitler promised peace in exchange for the “appeasement” of his demands. Then in March of 1939, he annexed the rest of __________________________.

18. Meanwhile, Mussolini sent troops to __________________________ and ________ faked an incident in Manchuria that they used to take over the area, then invading __________________________ in 1937.

19. __________________________ led a authoritarian, military uprising in 1936 in Spain.
